

INSIDE THE LOCKER ROOM

Senior Track and Field Co-Captain Mary Frederickson was not a juvenile javelin thrower. She actually did not begin throwing javelin until her sophomore year of high school.

It was then that her soccer coach, who was also the track and field coach, asked her to consider running track to stay in shape for soccer.

When Frederickson, a native of Florham Park, N. J., began training for the 400-meter event the following spring, her coach asked her to reconsider sprinting, and try throwing javelin.

"Since I could throw the soccer ball well," said Frederickson, "she convinced me to try javelin. It's been history ever since."

It's been history in a lot of ways for Frederickson since coming to Middlebury, who chose to major in the subject.

The farthest distance Frederickson has ever thrown is 129 feet. When asked if she has ever accidentally, or intentionally, hit anyone with a javelin, she didn't comment.

At least when it comes to TV, her favorite show is "Flavor of Love" featuring Flava Flav, so hopefully she takes his message of love to heart and doesn't ever aim for people.

In this week's competition, Frederickson's Atwater suitemates opted to compete together against her track and field teammate Christine Bolger '07.

Even though "There's Something About Mary" is not the movie always playing in Suite G, there is something about Mary and Angela's on Thursday nights, chocolate chip cookies and Middlebury Bagel.

Both Bolger and all of Frederickson's roommates in Suite G were able to correctly match her answers when it came to cookies, Middlebury memories and breakfast. This week's competition resulted in a tie.

Frederickson had reservations about designating Laura Dalton as her favorite first-year on the team, as she says "they're all great!" She chose Dalton because she reminds Frederickson most of herself "back in the day."

Frederickson will launch herself from the track and field field to the finance field after graduation in May. She will be working as a private equity analyst in Stamford, Conn.

This Saturday Frederickson and the rest of the track and field team will host the NESCAC Championships, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Editors' Picks

Questions of the week	Brooke Farquhar	Simon Keyes	Jeff Patterson
Will Middlebury top last year's number of five individual NESCAC titles in the Track and Field Competition this weekend?	YES Mary Frederickson is this week's athlete in Inside the Locker Room. It is good luck for the team.	YES Led by Co-Captain Beth Butler '07 and energized by the home crowds, the Panthers will run wild at NESCACs.	YES Home field advantage will help the field athletes and will attract lots of screaming supporters to the event.
How many goals will the Middlebury women's lacrosse team beat Tufts by?	THREE It is Jeff's lucky number.	FOURTEEN Honestly, this is such a shot in the dark, we might as well chalk up another one in the loss column for me.	SIX That's what time I'm getting up tomorrow.
Who will be the number one overall pick in this weekend's NFL Draft?	JAMARCUS RUSSELL Calvin Johnson should go number one, but the Oakland Raiders need a quarterback.	JAMARCUS RUSSELL If Calvin Johnson could drop back into the pocket, and pass the ball to himself downfield, then the Raiders would take him.	JAMARCUS RUSSELL LSU's big quarterback will be the big winner in the Big Apple on Saturday.
Will a Canadian team win the Stanley Cup?	YES Because as I'm writing this, Vancouver just beat Dallas in game seven. I'm inspired.	NO Buffalo is close to Canada, but the Sabres and perpetual winner Chris Drury will curb any hopes of a Stanley Cup north of the border.	NO The Sharks are going to swim all the way.
What side of the ball will the New England Patriots draft for?	OFFENSE After picking up Adalius Thomas from the Ravens, the Patriots' defense is looking good.	DEFENSE The Pats desperately need a safety to step in when Rodney Harrison is done. They also need a youth movement in their linebacking corps.	DEFENSE Tom Brady is so good he does not need a supporting cast — he just needs a defense that keeps games close.
